

BRASS WOOD & WIRES number among the new leaders of Berlin's Dub underground. Producing all their sound live and analogue, they promote the practice of dynamic live dubbing, performed with strong effects and virtuous instrumental work.

These six musicians from France and Germany take the trance quality of Dub music to a new level of instrumental and engineering performance. Varying from punchy horn-driven parts to dark dub atmospheres and long spherical moments.

The mix of cautious sound design and "classical" instrumentation, of heavy synth sounds and brass parts make Brass Wood & Wires more than a classical dub band, bringing on an exciting live performance. Since 2008, the band played over 100 club and festival shows in Germany, Italy and Central Europe.

Brass Wood & Wires released their latest album "Third Step" in February 2013. The focus of the production was put on dynamic playing and live recording. The album recreates quite accurately how the band sounds live. Third Step was entirely self-produced and licensed under Creative Commons.
